FINE WEATHER FOR PO'KEEPSIE RACES

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Poughkeepsie, June 28.—The big intercollegiate regatta with Columbia a slight favorite in the big varsity race, will be staged on the Hudson river this afternoon while 60,000 enthusiasts fracture the air with their cheers—but refuse to do any extensive wagering on the outcome of any of the three races.

Less money was bet on today's river battle than in any other held in the history of the American rowing classic.

The total amount at stake in Poughkeepsie on all three races probably did not reach $15,000.

There was some intercollege betting but very little wagering was done on the big vie-college varsity race that will close the day's program. The field was cluttered by so many "dark horses" that the gambling element adopted the "safety first" rule.

Beautiful weather greeted the huge crowd that was poured into the city by special trains, a fleet of excursion steamers and an endless chain of automobiles. Poughkeepsie, before the coming of the crowd, was ablaze with the colors of the rival colleges and the waving pennants and streamers of the visitors as they promenaded through the town during the morning hours added the final, wonderful touch to an already beautiful scene.

The rowing "experts" elected Columbia to the favorite's position—thereby jinxing Columbia. But they gave Columbia only a slight edge over Cornell. However, the odds—$4 to $5—on Columbia against the field was considered almost too prohibitive by even the most enthusiastic Columbia mob.

The betting was $8 to $5 against Cornell to win; $3 to $1 against Pennsylvania; $5 to $1 against Syracuse, and $10 to $1 against the Leland-Stanford crew.

The rowing "experts" decided that the big varsity race would be among Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania. They didn't concede Syracuse anything better than fourth position and "doped" it out that the Stanford crew was a joke outfit and would finish a mile or two behind the winner.

Non-expert opinion was that both Leland-Stanford and Syracuse had a chance to win—and a beautiful chance. It wouldn't have surprised us if Leland-Stanford and Syracuse both finished better than fourth.

Cornell, Syracuse and Pennsylvania varsity crews this year did not size up on paper as being equal to the crews that represented those colleges on the 1914 regatta. And that was one of the big reasons why Syracuse and Stanford, in our opinion, looked to have a fine chance to win a victory in the greatest rowing race in America.

The California crew was the biggest and heaviest that ever stroked a shell. It's average weight was 181 pounds and its average height was 6 feet 1½ inches. That meant tremendous power, tremendous endurance and tremendous reserve force—three of the greatest assets in a racing shell.

"My boys were ordered to get away in the lead," said Coach Frank Guerena, of Leland-Stanford. "If they follow those orders and land at the two mile mark they never will be headed. The Stanford oarsmen aren't equal to their rivals in rowing skill—but they've got the stamina. And that counts."

Syracuse, according to those on the "inside," was prepared to spring the biggest surprise of the day in the varsity race.

"The inside knowledge" fellows insisted that the stories about Syracuse having a mediocre crew were of the "bear" nature. They declared that today's Syracuse crew was almost as good as the 1913 race-winning outfit, despite the fact that Syracuse recently lost its star stroke-oarsmen.

No new time records were looked for in today's races, but the "experts" were all agreed that the big varsity battle would furnish one of the most thrilling contests that has been seen in many years.

There was some interest in the other two races—but it was almost nil in comparison with that in the big varsity race. Very little betting was done on the two "small fry" races.

In the freshman eight oared race the tip was out—"Watch Syracuse." Despite this Columbia was the favorite, with Cornell second choice, Pennsylvania and Syracuse figured for last place. Leland-Stanford has no entries in the freshman or junior varsity affairs.

Poughkeepsie had to extend itself to fed the army of visitors—but it "made good."

The first race wasn't staged until 4:15 p. m. but the crowd started for the course early. The observation train on the West Shore, was composed of 39 cars. Each car seated 104 persons—at $3 per person, every seat was filled. All the tickets were sold out nearly a week ago and the few that fell into speculators' hand were sold in the streets for $40 a pair. And sales were brisk. The "specs" couldn't supply the demand.

About 10,000 persons will see the finish of the races from the decks of the big river steamers and the others got their view from the hills that line the course. Some of the hillside spectators, anxious to get choice seats, arrived in the positions long before noon. Because they were the "underdogs" and because they had no graduates or undergraduates to cheer for them, the impartial section of the crowd tuned up its vocal apparatus for the purpose of cheering the California boys. Had the question been put to the entire assemblage—"Who do you want to win?"—the overwhelming answer would have been—"Leland Stanford."

The events:

4:15 p. m.—Junior varsity eight oared (2 miles.) Entries, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Cornell.

5: p. m.—Freshman eight oared (2 miles.) Entries: Syracuse, Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania.

6:15 p. m.—Varsity race, eight oared (4 miles.) Entries; Cornell, Columbia, Syracuse, Pennsylvania, Leland-Stanford.

BRITISH SUBMARINE SINKS SEVEN SHIPS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Athens, June 28.—The British submarine that penetrated the Sea of Marmora by diving underneath the Turkish warships at the eastern end of the Dardanelles is keeping up its attacks on shipping there. Seven Turkish merchant vessels carrying food supplies for the Gallipoli army have been sunk.

Most of the Turkish warships have sought shelter in the Golden Horn as a result of the submarines' operations.

Resumption of aeroplane activity on Gallipoli peninsula indicates a renewal of the allies' assaults there on an unprecedented scale, according to advices received here today.

CARRANZISTAS TAKE MEXICO CITY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 28.—Mexico City has fallen before the attack of the Carranzistas under Gen. Pablo Gonzales, Consul General Silliman at Vera Cruz reported to the state department today.

The date and circumstances of the defeat of the Zapatista army defending the capital were not given in the message. The dispatch from Mexico City was carried overland presumably to Pachuca to be telegraphed to Vera Cruz. This was the first word sent out of Mexico City in ten days.

Almost a Race Riot.

Saturday evening while the Italians at East Kingston were celebrating St. John's Day they were interrupted by some of the colored inhabitants of that section and for a time the situation looked dangerous. It was reported that guns and knives were drawn but there were no reports of an injury being done. Word was telephoned to the sheriff's office from several sources and Jailer Seth Jocelyn, who was in charge of the office in the absence of the sheriff and under sheriff, sent Deputy Sheriffs William Cohen, John B. Rafferty, Charles DuBois, Charles Davis and Edward Murphy to the scene. By the time they arrived, however, the disturbers had fled. John Mooney of East Kingston went over shortly after the affair started and quelled most of the disturbers by talking to them.

Boys Going to Camp.

Twenty-nine boys have so far signified their intention of being members of Camp Anawanna held at Lake Anawanna next month under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. All boys intending to go to camp this year must have their applications in at the Y. M. C. A. office by Thursday evening. The baggage for the camp must be at the O. & W. station before 5 o'clock Friday night. The camp will be in charge of Physical Director Godfrey assisted by Harry Evory. "Gus" Bonesteel will be the chef. The leaders in charge of the boys will be Claude Van Buren, Randall Freer, Charles Shultis, Earl Beckwith, Clarence Rowland and Clarence Schoonmaker. The camp musician will be Harry Elmendorf.

Bedford Badly Battered.

Henry Lebois, the Railroad avenue liveryman, was arraigned before Recorder Lang this morning charged with assault in the third degree preferred aginst him by Abram Bedford. Lebois pleaded not guilty and the trial was set down for Thursday morning and Lebois placed under a bond of $33. Bedford, who was represented by Judge N. Frank O'Reilly, looked as though he had received a first class trimming. One eye was badly battered and was protected by a heavy bandage while his face was discolored from the force of the blows he had received. Lebois, his alleged assailant, did not bear a mark on his face to show that he had been in a fight.

Cottekill's Big Cherry Crop.

Arthur K. Sheeley has a very large crop of very fine Montmorency cherries. These cherries are large and very free from worms or blemishes. It certainly is a sight to see the trees loaded with such pretty fruit. Mr. Sheeley has sold all his Richmonds and intends to clean up this week and next on these.

Entertainment at Katrine.

The ladies of the Flatbush Reformed Church will hold an entertainment and social in the Grange Hall at Katrine this evening at 8 o'clock. A program of plays, recitations, music, etc., will be given and ice cream and cake will be for sale. Proceeds for the church.

SINKING OF H.M.S. MAJESTIC IN DARDANELLES

SINKING OF THE MAJESTIC.

Giant British Sea Fighter Going to her Doom.

The most remarkable feat yet performed by a submarine was that of the German boat, U. 51, which included a 5,000 mile trip from its base in the North Sea and culminated in the sinking of the British battleships, Triumph and Majestic, in the Dardanelles on May 25 and 27. Captain Otto Herzing of the U. boat thus tells the story of his achievement.

"There were 33 of us aboard when we left Wilhelmshaven on April 25. Off the coast of England, past Gibraltar and in the Mediterranean we encountered enemy ships, but always dived to safety. We reached the Dardanelles on May 25.

"In the early morning light we saw the Triumph and the Majestic lying off the coast, constantly encircled by destroyers. Through the periscope I saw a destroyer coming directly for us. We dived. We came up immediately. I took aim through the periscope, pressed the button, and the torpedo slipped noiselessly into the water. We dived again. The explosion was as terrific as if it had been the fore part of the submarine itself."

The U. boat lay hidden for two days, then came up near the Majestic, ten ships steaming in a circle around her. The captain's story continues:

"Seeing welcome space between the encircling ships I pressed the electric button and the torpedo was going. I caught the Majestic a little to the rear of amidships. We dived again in silence. We remained submerged for several hours and then came up to the surface to find that the British had disappeared.

"We came to Constantinople arriving June 5, having spent 42 days in the submarine without rest or let up."

Not more than three score lives were lost in the sinking of the two battleships, which were of the pre-dreadnought type, but they were the last of six battleships lost by the allies, who soon withdrew to the comparative safety of a harbor in an island ten miles away.

MASONS OBSERVE ST. JOHN'S DAY

St. John's Day was observed Sunday evening by Kingston Lodge No. 10, Free and Accepted Masons, by a special service at St. James Methodist Episcopal Church, which also was attended by invitation by members of Kingston Chapter, No. 155, and Clinton Chapter, No. 445, Order of the Eastern Star.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. T. H. Baragwanath, pastor of the church, who took his text from 1 Kings, 6, 7: "And the house was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither, so that there was neither hammer nor axe nor any tool of iron heard in the house while it was building." The theme of the sermon was "The Eternal Building."

We are not so much concerned about the actual beginnings of Masonry, said Dr. Baragwanath, for just as God is older than the universe which He built, so are the principles of Masonry older than the splendid edifice which it has reared upon them. While Masonry rivals no religion, nor poses as a substitute, nor clashes with any creed, nor battles with any religious belief, still its chief corner stone, at which are set all the lines governing the building, is faith in God, and its principal adornment is human brotherhood.

God, the great architect of the universe, builds silently. Neither the creation of the spheres, nor the shaping of skies, nor setting the stars in their course, nor filling the sea, nor scooping out the hills nor garnishing the valleys was done by any power but God, but how quietly he works. No one hears the opening of the rose bud nor the forming of the snow crystal nor the unfolding of the day.

So God builds also in history. God is all history and this alone can explain the upward movements of the universe. The splendid victories of truth and righteousness are celebrated with less pomp and pageantry than the triumph of some petty general.

The plan by which we are to build is a divine one, as was that of Somomon's Temple, so that we who are toilers are executing a divine scheme. The most important part of any building is the foundation. What, therefore, are our foundations? In the first place, God. Not simply an assent to the doctrine of God, but the very life of God in the soul. What kind of moral architecture is that which does not recognize the Divine Being? God is the basis of all life. That character which has the most of God in in it is the strongest and the most beautiful.

Truth is another foundation stone. By truth is meant the love of the real. Not every part of a great building is beautiful. Far below the base we will find the rugged rocks which speak of strength. Where these rocks are found, beauty in the building becomes possible, like supporting pillars.

Love is another stone in the foundation. Love should be there in its true meanings and its practical workings. Love is a mantel that is thrown over the failings of our fellows. It is broad, and like the Master's garment it is woven without seam.

There can be no worthy soul building where these elements are absent. On this foundation must be reared the building, not by miracle but stone by stone, patiently and it may be with great suffering, until the top stone falls into position and the Master Toiler shall say: "Well done." We are the real builders and the task must be performed by us. We are touched and influenced on all sides but after all, the decisions as to what kind of material is to go into the building are made by us, and no single stone takes its place there without our sanction. We are liable to make mistakes, and these do mar the building. We are given a second chance, but this is not as good as the first. If we are to build strong and beautifully, we must shirk no effort and shrink from nothing which would teach us a new lesson. Criticism has a most important function, friendly and even unfriendly.

God does not make life easy for us, but He does seek to bring out the very best that is in us. He does not clear the forests for us, but we are to cut them down; He does not give us bountiful harvests for the asking but expects us to subdue the wilds of nature, to plow and sow. The very toil hardens and makes us strong.

Thus strength of character comes by strenuous effort and our own souls are nurtured when we minister to others. The world has not yet realized Christ's ideal of brotherhood. We have caught glimpses of it and we are striving after it, but we have not yet scaled the lofty heights. This ideal of brotherhood does not ask what we can get from this or that man, but what we can do for him, to lighten his burden, to brighten his life and put him in the way of success. This is what develops the divine in man because it is most like God.

The temple we rear is inhabited by an august guest for God dwelleth not in temples made by hand but in the human soul. The idea of all temple-building is to enshrine a God. This gives significance to our work and it becomes us to work with the greatest care on this eternal building.

When at last we discover that all the plans on the trestle board have been faithfully executed, then it is that the top stone is placed in position with songs of rejoicing. Then the rough and unsightly scaffolding falls, the incidents and so-called accidents of life, and then the splendid design and superb beauty of the building stand out. Character is the one thing that death cannot destroy. Character is the one immortal thing beneath time's changeful sky. This is the eternal building.

Optimistic Thought.

HUERTA ARRESTED BY U. S. OFFICIALS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., June 28.—Though at liberty on $15,000 bail pending his hearing on the charge of violating the neutrality of the United States by organizing a Mexican military movement, Gen. Victoriano Huerta is under close surveillance by Federal officers today to prevent his escape into Mexico. Similar precautions are being taken to prevent the flight of Gen. Pascual Orozco, who was released in bonds of $7,000. Their hearing will be held Thursday.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Luis Fuentes, Huerta's son-in-law and daughter, the former dictator today reiterated his denials that he had planned any military movement in Mexico, asserting that he intended to go to California to visit the Exposition there.

Nevertheless, the American officials profess to have strong evidence that Huerta and Orozco had buried their past differences and were about to open a campaign for the overthrow of the Villa regime in Northern Mexico, a scheme which was nipped in the bud by their arrest yesterday at Newman, N. M.

The Villa garrison at Juarez is resting on its arms in anticipation of an attack by Huerta troops led by Gen. Jose Salazar, which is alleged to have been one of the first blows planned for the Huerta outbreak. Salazar is understood to be at Guzman with a force of 2,000 Mexicans, many of them recruited on American soil, awaiting the word from Huerta to advance.

Huerta showed no uneasiness today when told that the charge under which he was arrested carried a penalty, in case of conviction, of a heavy fine or three years imprisonment.

"I am merely a victim of efficient watchful waiting," said the general. "I was on a pleasure trip when arrested and the American government has no evidence by which to convict me of a crime."

The sections of the penal code declared to be applicable to the case of Huerta and Orozco are as follows:

"Section 10.—Whoever, within the territory or jurisdiction of the U. S. enlists or enters himself, or hires or retains another person to enlist or enter himself to go beyond the limit of jurisdiction of the U. S. with the intent to be enlisted or offerred in the service of any foreign prince or state, colony, district, or people as a soldier or as a marine or seaman on board any vessel of war, letter of marque, and privateer, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than three years.

"Section 13.—Whoever, within the territory or jurisdiction of the U. S. begins or sets on foot or provides or prepares the means of any military expedition or enterprise to be carried from thence against the territory or dominion of any foreign prince or state or of any colony, district, or people with whom the U. S. is at peace, shall be fined not more than $3,000 or imprisoned not more than three years."

Secret service men are now looking for other Mexicans who are believed to have helped in organizing the conspiracy. Eight of these are said to have fled from El Paso as soon as they learned of the arrest of Huerta.

V. Barringer while in Kerhonkson on Saturday purchased a new wagon of M. C. Black.

Orval Bell and wife of City Hall were in this place again on Tuesday.

F. Roosa was in Krumville Thursday.

On Friday Mrs. F. Roosa and Mrs. V. Barringer started for Rock Rift, where they expect to spend some time with Mrs. Roosa's sister.

The mischievous ones that thought they were having great sport while treating Mr. Feltmann's mail box to a coat of mud and raising the flag might rather be in better business. If they get caught what may follow may not be such sport.

HUERTA BOUGHT WAR MATERIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., June 28.—It was learned today that the basis of the federal warrant on which Gen. Victoriano Huerta was arrested and held in $15,000 bail on a charge of violating the neutrality of the U. S. was the discovery of the purchase of a large quantity of war material to be used in furthering a military movement in Mexico.

The war supplies, said to include 14 machine-guns, 500 rifles and 100,000 rounds of ammunition was found by American soldiers in a local warehouse and is now under guard.

The purchase of the ammunition is also the basis of the charge against Gen. Pascual Orozco, who was arrested with Gen. Huerta.

The secret service men who were assigned to watch Huerta after he was released on bail, followed him closely today. The former dictator of Mexico went for an autombile ride through the El Paso valley this forenoon. The federal operatives were close behind his car in another machine during the entire ride.

Huerta was accompanied by his son Jorge and his private secretary on the motor trip.

The secret service men have been warned that Huerta would not permit the forfeiture of his $15,000 bail to prevent his flight into Mexico if he were given an opportunity and they have been instructed to watch him every moment.

They are also serving as protectors of the ex-dictator, as he is said to have been marked for assassination by many persons whose relatives are alleged to have been murdered while he was head of the Mexican government.

The El Paso banks were besieged by business men of Juarez as soon as they opened today. The store-keepers from the town across the Rio Grande deposited more than $100,000 here during the forenoon.

Koslowski Reprimanded.

Bernard Koslowski, upon whom sentence was suspended by Judge Cochrane, upon the condition that he report to Mrs. MacMillan at the Federation House every Wednesday evening at 7:30, was sent for by Judge Jenkins this morning and reprimanded for not obeying the conditions of his parole. He was allowed to go on the condition that in the future he would keep to the conditions of his parole and warned that if he did not, sentence would be pronounced and carried out. It appears that some of the boys with whom Koslowski has been associating had informed him that he could get away without reporting and this morning he had all sorts of excuses for his failure to report. After hearing the reprimand of Judge Jenkins he found that he was badly misinformed.

Festival at Point.

The parishioners and children of St. Mary's Church are to hold their annual summer festival at Kingston Point on Wednesday afternoon and evening of this week. The children of St. Mary's Parochial School will be given a trolley ride, which will be followed by game at the Point. Prizes will be given for those who win the games, and the boys and girls will also be served with refreshments. From five to seven o'clock supper, and a delicious one, will be served, the same to consist of hot chowder, potaoto salad, cold ham, sandwiches, coffee, ice cream and cake. In the evening there will be dancing at the pavilion, and a royal good time is assured all who attend this pleasantly anticipated event.

Cutting Down Election Expenses.

The furniture and office supplies and records of the state election bureau that have been kept in this city were today removed to Albany, the Kingston office under Deputy Superintendent Michael A. Meagher having been discontinued. Under the provisions of the law passed last winter to cut down expenses the number of districts was cut down and Ulster county loses its deputy.

CROWELL FACTORY AT WALLKILL BURNED

Wallkill, June 28.—On Thursday morning a serious and destructive fire occurred at Wallkill when the two story and basement brick mould factory of J. B. Crowell with connecting saw mill, located a mile west of this village, was burned to the ground. The building and contents were without insurance. This was the third time this factory has succumbed to fire. The fire this time was due to a new 12 horse power 2 cycle kerosene engine that was recently installed on trial. Previous to this the factory had used steam or water power. The new engine was understood to be designed for the use of either kerosene or gasoline. Gasoline had been used until Thursday morning when kerosene was put in. An explosion followed. The Wallkill firemen responded and did excellent work in saving the many other buildings. With characteristic enterprise the plant will be rebuilt at an early date.

Henry Geyer and wife, also C. W. Smith and wife spent Saturday at Lake Mohonk.

To the Business Men of Kingston

Message No. 1

Business fights shy of dead towns. A sure sign of a dead one is the lack of local pride. People who live in a live, prosperous town show it. Their stores are attractive, their streets clean, their homes are well painted.

Nothing shows a lack of pride, a lack of prosperity, like paint-hungry buildings. Let's paint up. As the most durable and economical paint, we recommend and Dutch Boy linseed oil, mixed right on the job, to suit the job. Have your painter tint it any color you wish. Consult your paint dealer on that job of painting you have in mind. Today's the day.

Her Waist Measure.

A teacher in one of the city schools—who, to say the least, is of rather generous proportions—was trying to explain to her scholars the correct measurements of the human frame. "For example," she said, "twice around my thumb, once around my wrist; twice around my wrist, once around my neck, once around my neck, once around my waist." Then she paused, and a shrill voice from the back of the room exclaimed, "Twice around yer waist, once around the city hall."

I am making a shoe polish and want to know what ingredients to use to produce the shine. It is all satisfactory except that it does not give the desired polish."—Kansas City Star.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 28, 1915.

The suppression of Vorwaerts, the official organ of the German Socialist party, indicates that there is no longer any right of free speech in Germany. This newspaper said nothing objectionable to the Government editorially, so far as we are informed, but printed as a matter of news an appeal for peace made by its party organization. Although this document is of vast importance, we infer that no other German newspaper printed it. The manifesto points out the undoubted fact that unless the war is to go on until everybody is killed or exhausted, "some one of the powers involved must stretch out the hand of peace." It is argued that Germany, having the better of the fight so far, and being in occupation of a considerable extent of the enemy's territory, is the only power in a position to make the first peaceful advance. The manifesto also pronounces against securing territory by conquest. All this seems eminently reasonable. There are, it is true, other sides to the question, but the Socialist position is distinguished by sanity, and falls far short of being traitorous. Germans have lived under military domination so long that they cannot understand freedom as we do, but we do not believe that a people with their ancestry and tradition will forever endure the tyranny of the Kaiser and his clique. It is as bad to be a slave in speech as to be one in body.

Statistics are said to show that there are 200,000 idle acres on Long Island waiting for farmers and the land is said to be cheap. Long Island farms now furnish Manhattan and its environs with a large part of its food supply and the additional acreage mentioned if placed under thorough cultivation would be capable of supplying a vast amount of the food daily consumed in the city. Long Island real estate has furnished fortunes to hundreds of people both in the way of fancy and staple crops and in investment and speculation. Predictions frequently have been made that Long Island in the course of time will be occupied solely by suburban residences of people whose business is carried on in Manhattan, but the prophets usually can be found to own real estate there which they want to sell. Fortunes have been lost as well as gained in Long Island real estate speculation and it is not always wise to buy on the mere presumption that the real estate may increase several hundredfold in value. There are plenty of undeveloped oil lands in the United States but because the Standard Oil Company made millions out of oil is no reason for assuming that all oil companies will do likewise. Demand and supply are not the only elements to be considered when buying oil land, Long Island real estate or anything else and the mere fact that someone else has been successful is not an indication that everyone who follows in his steps will meet with similar success. It is about time for land speculators to get busy again with talk of the fabulous wealth to be acquired by buying Long Island real estate but the man who is wise will not follow their advice blindly.

Testimony adduced in a Long Island divorce suit is to the effect that the husband converted his barn into a bank for the deposit of money which he did not wish his wife to find. The coachman discovered that the currycomb box was a favorite safe deposit vault, while old shoes served admirably as hiding places. One day the coachman found his overalls had been treated to $45 during the night and if the money hadn't been claimed later by the magnate the coachman would have been that much richer. How many other men are there whose nightly visits to the barn may not be for the purpose of hiding currency or coin which wifely fingers might deftly remove from masculine pockets if the money was carried in the house? How many wives who have examined the pockets of their husband's clothing and found nothing more nutritious than a bunch of keys or a bottle opener ever thought of the barn as a hiding place? Even the garage offers a temporary place of safety for the money which the man might spend foolishly the following day. The woodshed, too, might be filled with cash nightly. Careful housewives should examine these places. To allay suspicion, the really prudent wife might urge her husband to sleep an hour longer in the morning and offer her own services to chop the wood, clean the horse or polish the brasswork of the automobile. If the masculine suspicions were lulled, she would have ample opportunity not only to search for hidden treasure but also to do the work mentioned. What husband would not willingly allow his wife to find all his hidden gold if she would but do the chores and let him sleep? To the credit of Ulster county it may be said that none of these conditions obtain here.

SWEET BELLS OUT OF TUNE.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

It is not easy to remain sweet in the face of rebuffs and to walk ahead as if nothing had happened to mar the serenity of living, but it is wonderful to remain in tune with life and not let the world behold a sour visage.

Do you ever wonder what has happened to transfer a bright-faced, happy young girl or boy into a stern, worried-looking woman or man, lines and expressions settled and hard? Perhaps it is trouble, and again, perhaps it is just failure to keep in tune the bells that never should have been allowed to grow so jangling, and which perhaps would not have reached that sorry condition had the persons themselves realized the effect they caused.

Strangely enough, it is not things that happen that make individual bells lose their soft melody, but rather the manner of acceptance. There is a little woman in town whose husband died about five years ago, leaving her almost penniless and with three little ones looking to her for care and support. Friends, unaware of the depths of her nature, expected helpless rebellion and dependence, but they did not know the strength that was slumbering there. For when the first hard days were over she buried her sorrow as well as she could and hopefully went to work.

It was but the beginning of other blows of fortune which would have left many less courageous victims stunned, cringing and helpless. But she looked up and out and never once was overcome. The clouds at last cleared away and she was left sweet, hopeful and strong, with bells still in tune and something to live for.

There was abundant cause to feel oppressed and to yield the struggle to other hands; and who would have wondered at a few complaints and vain regrets? But instead of being crushed and useless, a burden to herself and to others, she developed into a woman to admire, to turn to for sympathy and advice—and to keep in mind as an example of what one may do when determined to accept the inevitable hopefully and with a strong heart.

With her, it was largely her attitude that won. Had she lost herself in a spirit of rebellion akin to that of a child, bitterly complaining that her way was hateful and she would not accept it at all, she might have fought and resisted to the last and been conquered in the end, spent and worn in the unequal contest. But the better way happily was followed by her—she did not like it, but she must accept it and maintain a strong spirit the while.

If one might gather together all the bitter fruits and worry and protest when the events themselves had almost dropped from memory, might count the long sleepless nights given over to undue care for something that could not possibly be changed and was only made worse by filling the mind with its woe, there would be a strong showing. And looking back to the hopelessness of these long, dreary nights, in the light of later knowledge, it would seem that we ought to be able to drop some of the worries and some of the protests.

When a difficulty nearly stands in the way, the most important thing is to take a stand in regard to it—overcome it if we can, shoulder it if we must. Worrying about it and striking at it with feeble, ineffective hands are of no avail, and reaction is certain to come.

Life is not so long that we can afford to throw away hours at a time, friends not so many or so faithful and long-suffering that we are warranted in burdening them with the sight of saddened faces and with the reflection of a sorrow or a trouble that will not be brushed away.

Everyone who has lived a normal life knows what it is to have trouble knock loudly at the door and sometime they refuse to go away. The difference is that when it comes to some, bells become discordant and remain so; and the world will not forever listen to the harsh sounds or long abide in the despondent atmosphere of the despondent ringer.

And others feel the blows, quail under the hurts, and pray that they may be turned aside, but they have sufficient courage to keep their sweet bells in tune, to their own lasting joy and to the continued comfort and peace of friends.

And the difference is far too great ever to be ignored.

We notice there is good fishing in the fourth lake, as we see a great many strings of fish going by and many large bass are among them.

BIBLE SOCIETY PLANS.

Work it Hopes to do Outlined by the President.

A large congregation greeted Judge Clearwater at the Rondout Presbyterian Church Sunday morning to listen to his address in behalf of the Ulster County Bible Society. The judge said that the Ulster County Society was the oldest in America, antedating in its organization that of the American Bible Society. It will celebrate its one hundredth anniversary in October, 1916, and preparatory to that, is conducting the following work:

1st.—Personally to canvass the city and every town in the county in order that every family in Ulster county should be supplied with at least one copy of the Bible.

2nd.—To see that every person not a member of any church or a regular attendant upon any religious service, shall receive a courteous invitation to attend such a service somewhere and be encouraged to do so.

3rd.—That every child of school age in the county may be brought into some school where the Bible is regularly read.

4th.—With the aid of the pastors of the several churches in Ulster, to select at least one visitor in each school district who will visit each family in that district at least once every three months, and suggest to the head of the family the matters recommended by the American Bible Society.

5th.—To open a mission in the village of Glasco during the months of July, August and September, and to station there a colporteur of the American Bible Society who will hold regular Sunday services at that mission for the benefit of the Italians and negroes who spend the summer in the brick yards at that place.

Judge Clearwater said that this entire work would have to be conducted and sustained by the membership of the society, and by the free will offerings of persons who were willing to support the cause of the Bible in Ulster county. That his audience would be surprised to learn that there were two thousand homes in Ulster county which did not contain a Bible, notwithstanding that there now were in the county one hundred and seventy places of Protestant worship, and that the Church of Rome vigilantly and diligently looked after the spiritual welfare of all cummunicants of that faith. He stated that when he was a boy it was the custom of parents to make their children life members of the Ulster County Bible Society, a custom which it was to be regretted had fallen into disuse, but one which the society hoped to revive. He thought there should be at least five thousand members of the society in the county as the annual membership cost but one dollar per year, and that there should be at least five hundred life members, a life membership cost but $25 a year.

Lost Curls Are Found.

In a picture show at a Madison street theater one evening a little girl and her mother were seated near me. A comic picture was on, showing a lady "making up" with paint, powder, false hair, etc. The climax came when the interested little girl cried out: "Oh, mamma, there's the curls you lost at Aunt Bell's party. Where do you 'spose she found 'em?"—Chicago Tribune.

Centenarians.

The countries having the greatest number of people 100 years old, or more, are as follows, in their rank: Roumania, Bulgaria, France, Great Britain, Germany, United States. Bulgaria, with 4,000,000 population, has 3,300 centenarians, while our country, with 100,000,000, can show less than one hundred centenarians.

The charming young woman who expected to be married soon, went to the registration book for the first time. The man in charge asked: "With what party do you expect to be affiliated?" "That's none of your business," she replied. "If I have to tell his name I'm not going to register, so there."

Optimistic Thought.

The generous man grows rich in giving.

Answer to a Correspondent.

No, Mr. Bosbyshell, you must not confound bellona with bologna. The one belongs to the age of myths and the other to the sausage. The bellona is made chiefly of hot dogs of war, whereas the bologna—well, never mind what the bologna is made of. Shut your eyes and eat it, and be content with the thought that, whatever their origin, it is constructed of little pieces of something, while the other is not.

Errors of Dramatists.

The early English dramatists (before Shakespeare) were led to form an erroneous conception of tragedy. In order to secure for it its due importance and the greatest possible effect they exaggerated the tragic element to such a degree as to make it hideous and horrible, and to accomplish this they had recourse to the most forced situations, to the delineation of coarse outbursts of passion and to a diction which was unnatural, forced and bombastic.

Forces to Be Destroyed.

The forces of nature we must endeavor to avoid. Working blindly as they do we can do nothing to overcome them. At most we can avoid their destructive influence and alleviate the suffering they give rise to. But the forces that are thrust out by ourselves, that spring from our own minds, must be controlled and overcome. They are primitive. They are brutal. They are animal forces. Against these we must direct our energies.

FARRELL AS A COACH

Played Prominent Part in Development of Donovan.

Few Men Better Qualified to Act as Tutor Than Old-Time Catcher of Giants—Was Backstop for Amos Russie and Meekin.

A strange coincidence about Charles "Duke" Farrell's position as coach for the Yankee pitchers is the fact that it was none other than he who played a prominent part in the development of "Bill" Donovan as a twirler.

When Donovan broke in with Washington in 1898 Farrell was doing the catching for the team and it was his coaching as much as Donovan's ability that helped Donovan to later cut such a prominent figure in the pennant chases of the Detroit Tigers. Donovan and Farrell were also battery mates in Brooklyn in 1899 and 1900.

There are few men better qualified to act as coaches than "Duke" Farrell.

"Duke" Farrell.

When he was with the old Giants he used to catch Rusie and Meekin, and when his playing days were over he acted as a coach for the Yankees in 1909 and part of 1910. In 1913 he was with the Boston Red Sox in the same capacity.

TIME TO PACK THE BAT BAG

Manager Griffith Receives Severe Jolt When He Thinks He Has Game Securely Tied Up.

"Never count your chickens before they're hatched."

This is a little rule that Clark Griffith ought to paste in his hat.

Griffith was so absolutely sure that the Nationals would win out after they piled up a seven-run lead at the close of the sixth inning of a game played with the Detroits last season, that he refused to be disturbed when the Tigers got to one Mr. Engle in the seventh for a trio of runs.

Then in the eighth he allowed the much-distressed Engle to fill up the bags again before sending in Hughes. Moriarty, the first man to face Hughes, got a double and brought in three runs, putting the Tigers just one run behind Washington.

In the ninth inning after the Nationals had their turn at bat Griffith ordered the bat boy to get out the black bag and made other preparations for departure as if he were certain that the train would leave on time. The bats were all packed away and the players on the bench were standing up with their excess luggage in their hands when Gandil's error allowed the run that tied the score. In the extra inning the Tigers pasted up the winning tally.

Moral.—Never pack the bat bag until the last man is out.

Careful of Throwing Arm.

Manager Hughey Jennings is opposed to his men using their throwing arms when necessity does not compel it. The Tiger leader believes that a good many promising ball players are ruined before their time because of the practice of warming up when they should be sitting on the bench taking things easy. Hughey insists that his ball playing days were shortened by five years because of the habit of pitching for hours before a game. "Cobb has spoiled his arm by pitching before each game and doing a lot of unnecessary throwing," says Jennings. "Ty had one of the greatest arms I have ever seen when he came to Detroit, but he overtaxed the cords and the muscles and lost much of his strength."

Chicago Baseball Mad.

Chicago is baseball mad once more. The success of the Cubs and the White Sox has stirred up the bugs of the Windy city like they were in 1906, when the two Chicago teams played for the world's championship. The Cubs and the Sox will be big money-makers this year if they keep up their fast work.

That Resemblance.

"What a funny looking man that conductor is!" said Mrs. Jiggles on the trolley. "Yes," said Jiggles. "I've been trying to think whom he looks like. His face is very familiar to me." "Oh, I know who it is!" said Mrs. Jiggles. "It's our goldfish!"—Judge.

And They Didn't Exercise.

William M. Evarts, who lived until he was nearly ninety, said he kept his health by never taking exercise. The celebrated Dr. William George Mead, who lived to the surprising age of 148 years, spent nearly all of his time in the open air and played a little golf. Dr. Mead used to drink two or three quarts of water every day, and perhaps there is a suggestion in that. Old Dubois, who lived in Canada for the better part of 119 years on the north shore of Lake Erie, never worked and never took exercise. He spent seventy-five years of his life fishing with hook and line and ate nothing but baked apples and milk and brown bread and unsalted butter.

Rosewood.

Most people have the idea that rosewood takes its name from its color, but this is a mistake, for true rosewood is almost black of hue. Its name comes from the fact that when first cut it exhales a perfume similar to that of the rose, and, although the dried rosewood of commerce retains no traces of this early perfume, the name lingers as a relic of the early history of the wood.

Then Silence Was Profound.

"Did you ever see a company of women perfectly silent?"

"Yes, once. Some one had asked which of those present was the eldest."—Boston Transcript.

Dealing In Futures.

"It is my firm belief," announced Jasper Knox, the sage of Piketown-on-the-Blink, "that in the dim and misty future there is a faint possibility of some hitherto unknown inventive genius accidentally stumbling upon a scientific formula, the compounding of which, superinduced by a liberal and proper administration of the same to teething infants, will impart to those necessary household adjuncts a sense of propriety which will enable them to comprehend the utter folly of keeping their overworked father awake half of the night, when the high cost of living demands that he be up and doing when the cuckoo clock proclaims the advent of another day of toil."—Judge.

A Deep Sea Mascot.

One of the favorite mascots of deep sea fishermen, to which they attach great importance, is a tiny flat stone, or bone, found in the ears of plaice and other fish. The wearer of one of these stones is supposed to be immune to the danger of drowning.

It is easy to find these stones in the ears of fish, although they are no bigger than a split lentil. Anybody who cares to look for one and to examine it will see on its surface light and dark rings, similar to those found on a larger scale in tree trunks. The number of rings tells the age of the fish, as a new ring appears each year. —Every Week.

Head 'Em Off And You Won't Have to Swat 'Em

MR. I. W., undesirable citizen, official distributer of typhoid, cholera infantum, dysentery, tuberculosis, spinal meningitis, is having the fight of his life in Cleveland. The city has gone "Swat the fly!" one better and carried through an early spring "Head 'em off!" campaign, with results that are nothing less than sensational.

Cleveland has already been proclaimed a "flyless city." It is hardly that yet. But thousands of householders have found it possible to dispense entirely with screens at doors and windows, and a lone fly creates more excitement now than a swarm of flies would have done a few years ago. In a recent inspection of the city markets, where quantities of meat and provisions are exposed, only two flies were found. Years ago there were myriads.

© National Geographic society.

The "Head 'em off!" campaign was tried two years ago, with such good effect that last year, with improved methods and a notable marshaling of forces, the war was a still greater success.

ROADSIDE CAMP AT SLEIGHTSBURGH

For More Than Two Weeks Two Women Have Camped by the Wayside, Sleeping in Chairs and Dressing in a Chicken Coop.

Evicted from their home and spending the past two weeks under a shelter made of the household furniture with some old canvas spread over the top to keep out the rain and forced to sleep in chairs, the shelter not being large enough for a bed to be placed under it, has been the experience of Mrs. Mary Henderson and her daughter, Mrs. Daisy Harder, who are camped along the highway leading from Sleightsburgh to Port Ewen. The camp attracts considerable attention from passers-by and is furnishing food for gossip in the town of Esopus.

Mrs. Henderson and her daughter have been residents of Sleightsburgh for a number of years. Their husbands are dead. The mother is sixty-two years old and the daughter is apparently more than half that age. For several years they have resided in a small frame building along the main road, which they rented for $2.50 a month. Last fall the two women were notified by the owner of the building that they would have to move, but they continued to reside in the house. Two weeks ago the owner, through his attorney, served notice on the women that they would have to vacate as they were back $24 on the rent. The amount of the rent due is disputed by the evicted women who claim that they only owe for seven months rent amounting to $17.50.

Shortly after the notice to vacate had been served and the women had not moved Deputy Sheriff Avery of South Rondout appeared at their home and began taking out the furniture which was placed out in the road in front of the house. Later other men appeared and jacked up the house and moved it away. According to the story told by the two women when they found themselves evicted they tried to get other rooms but were unsuccessful and so they stacked up the furniture in front of the barn on the premises and securing some old canvas they made a shelter under which they crawled to spend the night. They have been spending the past two weeks under the shelter, pulling part of the canvas down so that it formed a curtain and hid them from view when they retired for the night. The furniture is packed so closely together that it only affords them space enough to crowd in two large chairs in which they spend the night. The shelter is not high enough for the women to stand upright under it.

The location of the camp is about half way up the big hill that leads from the ferry to Port Ewen and as one ascends the hill the shelter is on the right hand side of the road. It is built almost entirely on the town property and but two feet project over on private land. The nearest idea one gets of the appearance of the shelter from the first view of it is that of furniture packed on a steamboat dock ready to be taken aboard the boat and covered over with canvas to protect it from the elements.

As the onlooker approaches closer to the shelter he finds that the furniture and household goods have been packed with some system and are put compactly together but it is hard to realize at first glance that any human being could get under the shelter, let alone live under it. The entrance to the shelter faces the barn on the property and can not be seen from the highway unless one steps from the road and approaches the shelter from the rear.

In the rear part of the shelter heavy boards have been placed across the top using some of the furniture as side walls. This leaves a space for the campers under the shelter about four feet wide and about five feet high. In this small space are crowded the two chairs used for beds and other purposes. At one side of the shelter is a barrel upended and on top of it a water pail filled with water and shaded by an umbrella from the rays of the sun. When the two women are under the shelter there is no room for a third party. So small is the space that it is absolutely impossible to erect a bed under the shelter and for that reason the two women are forced to sleep each huddled up in a chair and covering themselves with blankets to keep out the chill evening air.

There is no room under the shelter for a stove and all the cooking that is done is through the kindness of two neighbors who allow the women to cook their coffee on the kitchen stove. For the past two weeks the two women have been living on canned goods such as do not have to be cooked in order to be eaten.

So small and cramped is the open space under the shelter that the women have not been able to dress under it and the daughter when she has to dress to come to Rondout has to go in the chicken coop to change her clothes. She is also forced to use the chicken coop as a boudoir and mornings she retires to the privacy of the coop to dress and comb her hair.

The chicken coop sets about fifty feet back from the road and is also used for living apartments by the few hens owned by the women. Some distance from the chicken coop the younger woman has erected a runway for their young chickens of which they have about one hundred. The runway is built on the site of the former home occupied by the women.

The two women claim that the only reason for their eviction was because they were back on their rent. They had expected they say to pay this back rent as soon as they were paid by people who owe them money. They manufacture an ointment known as Grandma's Electric Ointment which they sell. They say they have sold a number of bottles for which they have not been paid as yet. With the money due they had expected to pay the back rent.

The women say they are camping out because after they had been evicted by the deputy sheriff they had been unable to secure other rooms and so were forced to do the best they could. After they had been put out of their home they had attempted to get in the barn on the premises but the deputy sheriff had locked the barn door so they could not get in and so they built their shelter in front of the barn.

Since they have been living under the shelter only one person has bothered or attempted to molest them and that was a drunken man but when they told him that the deputy sheriff had told them to notify him if they were molested the drunken man quickly moved on. Since then they have lived in peace.

Asked what had become of their former home the women replied that the house had been moved away to the premiss of the owner and was now being used for a pigeon coop.

Life has not been one pleasant dream to them since they have been living in their present abode as several electric storms have swept over the vicinity but fortunately for the women the canvas spread on top of their shelter has kept the interior from getting damp.

It was only the excitement of their present manner of living that was helping to keep them up they said and so far they have been able to ward off illness from exposure. The mother, however, has not been in the best of health and this is the reason, according to the daughter, why she has not gone to work in an effort to secure money to relieve them from their distresses. She said that owing to her mother's illness she was afraid to leave the older woman alone.

The mother said that every night she is praying to God and she knows that her prayers for relief will be answered and that they will not be forced to live as they are now doing for long. Cramped and crowded as the women are it as a wonder that they have not been taken ill long before this.

They said that they have relatives living in New York city whom they have informed of their plight and that they expect to receive assistance from them when they will forsake their present abode.

They said they have never asked assistance from the town authorities and expect from aid received from relatives to get along without applying to the town.

It is said that the poormaster of the town has had his attention called to the campers. It is also rumored that when it was learned that the women were camping out that offers had been made to them by friends to get them rooms in Rondout but that the offers had been turned down. Just how much truth there is to the rumors could not be learned.

All sorts of reasons have been advanced by residents of the town as to the cause of the women being evicted but the women themselvs when questioned state that it was because they were back in their rent.

There is no question but that action should be taken by the town authorities in the event that the women do not receive the assistance they expect from relatives as if they are allowed to live in their present quarters long their health will be broken down from exposure to the elements.

Not in some years has the town of Esopus had such a juicy morsel to gossip about, but there is no question that the women should be taken care of and not allowed to occupy their present abode.

Paint Now

If you ought to have painted last year and waited, how much do you think you made?

You'll buy an extra gallon this year. There's $5 or $6 for paint and labor. You think you won't but you will; you can't stretch paint.

It is always so; the longer you wait, the more paint and wages. Besides what paint is for. What is it for?

Mr. Burhans was born in the town of Olive and resided there until his property was acquired by the city of New York in 1907, when he removed to Kingston. He has since lived here. Several years ago he purchased a plantation on the Isle of Pines and spent the winter there each year. His plantation was devoted principally to raising pineapples and grape fruit. He returned to Kingston last April and intended to go to his plantation in October. Everybody Goes to the Races.

A large number of Kingstonians took the opportunity offered by the fine weather today and went down the river to see the boat races. This year owing to the fact that the state road had been torn up automobilists detoured by way of New Paltz, suitable detour signs having been erected by the Automobile Club of Ulster county. A number made the trip from this city on the steam yachts.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 28.—Although some gains were recorded in the initial trading on the stock exchange today the tone of the market generally was heavy and during the first 15 minutes prices of the majority of issues were established at lower levels. United States Rubber common continued extremely weak falling from 51⅜ to 50 on a single transaction and later dropping to 49, a loss of 2⅝ from Saturday. Canadian Pacific dropped 1¼ on a few transactions to 146¾, and fractional declines were sustained in Baldwin Locomotive, American Locomotive and Butte and Superior. Reading was exceptionally strong in the early trading, advancing ½ to 150½, and although it lost the gain in the next few minutes it rallied again. New York Air Brake moved up ½ to 93½, but reacted in the next few minutes. Missouri Pacific fell ½ to 7¼, and Union Pacific ¾ to 127⅞.

Noon.—Trading was extremely quiet in the late forenoon with little change in the prices of the leading issues. Bethlehem Steel, U. S. Steel Common and Reading all sold around their opening prices. Union Pacific moved up ⅛ to 128 and Utah Copper made the same amount of gain, selling at 69¼. Fractional advances were noted in American Can, U. S. Rubber and Canadian Pacific. Money loaning 1¾.

2:30 p. m.—In the first half of the last hour business was quiet without any particular feature. Accumlation of Reading contined in evidence with most of the buying orders coming from a single source. U. S. Rubber showed evidence of pressure and declined. Utah Copper, while shading its best was above the morning range.

The stock market closed steady; governments bonds unchanged; other bonds irregular.

No Longer a "Corn Belt."

The "corn belt" used to be a strip of country running generally from Pennsylvania to Kansas, and including Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and the southern half of Iowa.

But the fashion in belts is changing, as all fashions are liable to do. The corn belt is spreading itself out. It goes further east and further west, and most emphatically it is moving to the north and south. Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and even the Dakotas and Montana are now in the corn belt. The southern states are knocking at the door. Georgia, Alabama and the Carolinas are showing that a hundred bushels to the acre is nothing to them.

The corn belt in the future will extend from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, and it will reach to the Rocky mountains, if not beyond. It is no longer a belt, but a section, comprising almost the entire arable portion of the United States, and may even include the deserts and the mountains to a limited extent.—Farm Life.

WILL POSE AS MODEL FOR ELECTRA TO SHINE FORTH DURING ELECTRICAL PROSPERITY WEEK.

New York, June 26.—There are somewhere in the neighborhood of four hundred and ninety-nine pouting, disappointed and beautiful girls scattered over the country. Five hundred American beauties submitted photographs to the Electrical Prosperity Week Committee, the winner of the contest to serve as a model of the Goddess of Electra. Of that number, Miss Florence Cassassa of Brooklyn, was selected.

Beauty of face was not the only determining factor in picking "Electra." It was the graceful statuesque figure that helped in the selection of Miss Cassassa.

Before Electrical Prosperity Week from November 29 to December 4, inclusive, arrives, Miss Cassassa will have the distinction of having at least 100,000,000 copies of her features spread broadcast over the United States. It will appear on all the posters, letter heads, envelopes and other advertising matter of the committee.

The Society for Electrical Development is arranging the details of the seven day electrical celebration. The membership of the committee includes more than 1,200 of the leading power plants, manufacturers, jobbers and contractors in the country. The purpose of the celebration is to celebrate peace and prosperity, and incidentally to teach the general public the wider uses of electricity.

Among the judges who selected Miss Cassassa, who is an American girl of Italian extraction, were H. S. Morgan, John Flanagan, Alonzo Kimball, C. Ward Traver, Walter L. Green and Hamilton King, all well known artists.

Age of Granite.

It used to be thought that granite was the oldest of all rocks and that it formed the globe's first crust. Now, however, geologists believe that granite may be of any age or epoch. The granites found in Germany and the Vosges mountains of France date from one period of the world's history, those found in the British Isles from an entirely different period and those found in the United States from still other periods. Enormous pressure, combined with heat and water, must have been necessary to produce granite. Some scientists declare that the granites in the highlands of Scotland must have been formed when 60,000 feet of overlying rocks were piled above them and that those of Cornwall required 40,000 feet of rock pressure. In other localities it is estimated that the pressures under which granite consolidated must have been equal to that of an overlying mass of rock nine miles in thickness.—New York American.

Investment and Speculation.

When any one is buying a coat or a fishing rod or a rose tree or laying down a cellar or setting up a library either he knows what he wants, where to get it and what to pay for it or else he takes earnest counsel with his friends and with the most trustworthy professional advisers that he can find and uses all the wits that he and others can bring to bear on the subject in order to make sure that his purchase is prudently conducted. He attends sales, rummages in shops and discusses the matter in his club until he and it are voted a nuisance. If only half as much time and trouble were devoted to the careful selection of investments there would be fewer bad companies, unscrupulous promoters and ornamental directors, the world would be very much richer, and its riches would show less tendency to gravitate into questionable hands.—Cornhill Magazine.

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority.

CHAP. 281.

AN ACT to amend the railroad law, in relation to damages for failure to construct and maintain cattle-guards.

Became a law April 14, 1915, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section fifty-two of chapter four hundred and eighty-one of the laws of nineteen hundred and ten, entitled "An act in relation to railroads, constituting chapter forty-nine of the consolidated laws," is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 52. Fences, farm crossings and cattle-guards. Every railroad corporation, and any lessee or other person in possession of its road, shall, before the lines of its road are opened for use, and so soon as it has acquired the right of way for its roadway, erect and thereafter maintain fences on the sides of its road of height and strength sufficient to prevent cattle, horses, sheep and hogs from going upon its road from the adjacent lands, with farm crossings and openings with gates therein at such farm crossings whenever and wherever reasonably necessary for the use of the owners and occupants of the adjoining lands, and shall construct where not already done, and hereafter maintain, cattle-guards at all road crossings, suitable and sufficient to prevent cattle, horses, sheep and hogs from going upon its railroad. So long as such fences and cattle-guards are not made, or are not in good repair, the corporation, its lessee or other person in possession of its road, shall be liable for all damages done by their agents or engines or cars to any domestic animals thereon. When made and in good repair, they shall not be liable for any such damages, unless negligently or wilfully done. A sufficient post and wire fence of requisite height shall be deemed a lawful fence within the provisions of this section, but barbed wire shall not be used in its construction.

No railroad need be fenced, when not necessary to prevent horses, cattle, sheep and hogs from going upon its track from the adjoining lands. Every adjoining land owner, who, or whose grantor, has received compensation for fencing the line of land taken for a railroad, and has agreed to build and maintain a lawful fence along such line, shall build and maintain such fence. If such owner, his heir or assign shall not build such fence, or if built, shall neglect to maintain the same during the period of thirty days after he has been notified so to do by the railroad corporation, such corporation shall thereafter build and maintain such fence, and may recover of the person neglecting to build and maintain it the expense thereof. And when such railroad shall cross timbered or forest lands, the company shall construct and maintain suitable and sufficient crossings, whenever and wherever reasonably necessary to enable the respective owners of said lands to transport logs, timber and lumber for manufacture or sale, or for banking on any stream, to be floated or driven down the same. In case of any neglect or dispute the supreme court may by mandamus or other appropriate proceedings, compel the same, and also fix the point or location of any such crossing.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

A violation of any of the foregoing provisions shall constitute sufficient cause for the removal of such officer or board of administration by the duly constituted authority having jurisdiction.

AN ACT to amend the military law, in relation to depot battalions and units.

Became a law April 14, 1915, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

Section 1. Section one hundred and twenty of chapter forty-one of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act in relation to the militia, constituting chapter thirty-six of the consolidated laws," is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 120. Organization of depot battalions and units. When a regiment, the companies serving in a coast defense command, the organized battalions of the corps of engineers or a squadron or battalion not part of a regiment shall be in the actual service of the United States, the governor shall organize depot units as follows, a battalion to take the place of a regiment and such number of companies, troops or batteries as he may determine to take the place of other units.

Such depot units shall not be called on for duty outside the state except in case of emergency to be determined by the governor, but the members thereof may be transferred by him to fill temporary or permanent vacancies or to make up a deficiency in strength in the organization for which the depot unit is formed.

The governor from time to time and in advance of the entry of an organization into the actual service of the United States may appoint and commission the officers necessary for the depot unit or units authorized by this section to be formed in place of such organization by selection from the reserve list of officers in the first instance and so long as there are officers thereon available for the positions to be filled, or he may detail officers from the reserve list for such positions; and he may authorize the formation of the enlisted strength of such unit or units by selection and transfer from the reserve list of non-commissioned officers and enlisted men in the first instance and so long as there are non-commissioned officers and men thereon available for the positions to be filled and in default thereof of tender of or agreement for service therein in such form as he may prescribe; provided, such apointment shall be made upon the nomination of the commanding officers of the organization for which the depot unit is formed unless such organization be in the actual service of the United States, in which case the selection shall be made by election or appointment in the depot unit by the method adopted by the organization for which it is formed; and provided that the commissions authorized by this section and the appointment of non-commissioned officers of depot units shall confer upon the persons receiving such commissions or appointments, the rights and privileges of commissioned officers or non-commissioned officers, respectively, of the national guard of this state during the period that the organization for which the depot unit with which they are serving is in the actual service of the United States and only during said period except that officers and non-commissioned officers of depot units shall have authority to exercise command in their respective units.

The governor in advance of an organization entering into the actual service of the United States may authorize the issue for its depot unit or units of such arms, equipments, colors, camp and garrison equipage, books of instruction and of record and other supplies as may be necessary for the proper performance of the duty required by this chapter and such issue may be made to an officer or officers of the organization for which such depot unit is formed. Each officer and member of a depot unit to whom public property is issued shall be personally responsible to the state for such property to the same extent that officers and enlisted men of the national guard are responsible for public property issued to them.

Coined "Angels."

An "angel" was an ancient gold coin weighing four pennyweights and valued at 6s in the reign of Henry VI, and at 10s in the reign of Elizabeth in 1562. It took its name from the effigy of an angel embossed on one side.

Some Progress, Anyway.

There are still many discouragements and backsets along the path of progress, but our memory goes back to the time when frequently one of the chief worries of a campaign manager was how to keep the candidate sober.—Columbus (Ohio) Journal.

Returning the Compliment.

It has always been the policy of the Kingston Symphony Society to make Kingston, not some outside city, no matter how noted musically the center of its activities, bringing prestige to, instead of sending it from Kingston. Appreciating this fact, the board of education, employed a fine group of musicians from the Symphony Orchestra, under the conductorship of George H. Muller, for the commencements of both academies, held in the new high school building. Much very favorable comment has been made upon the fine musical program rendered on both occasions, by the orchestra, which played the following numbers:

Overture to "Wonderland"...Herbert
Chants Sams Parole..Tschaikowsky
Paquinta .....Robyn
"Mighty Lak'a Rose" .....Nevin
March from "The Grand Duchess"..
—De Koven.

Symphony Society Plans For 1915-6.

The Kingston Symphony Society has now completed its plans for the coming season and wishes at this time to take the public, which has supported the organization in the past, as well as its many new friends, into its confidence. The society purposes to give the usual three Symphony Orchestra concerts, with the preceding public rehearsals for the school children in the months of December, February and April. Already remarkably attractive programs for these concerts are being mapped out. In January, the society plans, with the aid of the chorus which sang the Creation at the music festival this spring, and operatic soloists of note, to give a complete musical presentation of "Faust," not, of course with any dramatic action, scenery, etc., but giving the full musical text. Next spring, the second music festival, with choruses from Kingston and nearby towns, will be held, the oratorio to be given, being "The Messiah." This means a large amount of work and effort on the part of the Symphony Society, which will follow out its educational ideals and will also make its musical performances such as will bring people into the city from the surrounding towns. In order to carry to a successful issue, such a program, a fund upon which to draw will be a necessity, for during the summer and fall there will be rent to be paid, music to be purchased, rehearsals to be held, and many other incidental expenses to be met in addition to the first productions to be given. To defray such expenses and carry forward this splendid work, which in its results will prove as in the past, a decided asset to the city, subscriptions will be asked for at this time, and it is hoped that the people of Kingston, who during the past year have expressed their appreciation of the music given them by the Symphony Society, will respond generously to the request for further support.

Big Concert Program Tomorrow.

Tomorrow, Tuesday evening, the people of Kingston will be given such a musical treat as has been afforded them only by the Dodge subscriptions of former years, in that a world renowned 'cellist, Leo Schulz, will be supported by two other musical artists worthy to be on the program with Mr. Schulz. It is a well-known fact, that from the first note produced by Mr. Schulz, as his bow touches the strings of his 'cello, until the last note dies away into the realm of memory, he holds his audience spell-bound. And the sale of tickets for this remarkable concert proves conclusively that the past few years of musical education as carried on by the Kingston Symphony Society and Mr. Dodge has been effective, for the response of the musical public of Kingston is excellent. And here is a matter of especial interest to the children in the city of school age who may wish to hear this concert. Such school children will be admitted to the opera house tomorrow, Tuesday evening, for the small sum of 25 cents, special tickets being provided for them. The program will be as follows:

Aria, M'aparia, from the opera "Martha" .....Flotow
Henri Barron.
a. Nocturne .....Chopin
b. Spinnlied .....Popper
Leo Schulz.
Micaela's Aria from "Carmen"....
—Bizet
Miss May Keon.
a. Air .....Bach
b. Serenade .....Hayden
c. Moment Musicale .....Schubert
Leo Schulz.
Aria Celesta Aida, from "Aida"....
—Verdi
Henri Barron.
English Songs
a. Elysium ..... Speaks
b. Two Eyes of Gray ..McCoech
Miss Keon.
Duet from Act 1, "La Boheme"....
—Puccinni
Miss Keon and Mr. Barron.

E. B. Squires will preside at the piano. This is a program that should attract all who enjoy good music, for it is both varied and artistic.

Lampman Bankruptcy.

After a hearing held before Amos Van Etten, as referee in the matter of Edwin A. Lampman, bankrupt, the referee has handed down a decision dismissing the objections to the discharge of Lampman and deciding that the bankrupt was entitled to his discharge from bankruptcy. The objections to Lampman's discharge were raised by D. G. Atkins, representing various creditors. Judge Stephan represented Lampman, who conducted a grocery store in Port Ewen. No evidence was taken at the hearing, the entire matter being submitted in oral arguments by both counsel.

Piano Recital Omitted.

It has been decided to omit the annual recital of Arthur H. Snyder's piano class which usually occurs near the end of June. The prevailing epidemic of scarlet fever in our city necessitates this wise precaution at the present time. It has been thought best to replace the June recital with an informal musical evening to take place in the early part of October when there will be a "class reunion" of Mr. Snyder's piano pupils.

Rondout Presbyterian Church Notes.

The Westminster Guild of the church will hold a lawn party on the grounds of Harry G. Smith, No. 124 West Pierpont street, on Wednesday evening. Ice cream, cake and home made candy will be for sale. A Victrola concert will add to the pleasure of the occasion.

The subject for the Thursday evening meeting will be "Your Opinion of What a Good Prayer Meeting Ought to be." —All are invited.

Sunday School Picnic.

The High Point Sunday school will hold their annual picnic in Hughes's Grove, just south of the Brodhead post office on the Ashokan boulevard, on July 5, afternoon and evening. Refreshments will be sold on the grounds. Entertainment will consist of races, music and fireworks. All are welcome.

Family Portraits.

There is a beautiful home on Long Island that the owners wished to lease for the summer. Two parvenus with social ambition thought this residence might be the means of launching them into local society, so they went to look it over. Upon entering the boudoir of a young woman member of the family, their eyes fell upon a beautiful Madonna on the wall. They also observed a Beatrice. One of the party said, "Well, if we do take the house, will you please remove the family portraits?"—Judge.

To Make Bandages.

Bandages can be prepared from the good parts of worn sheets or pillow slips if perfectly lean. Rolls six to eight yards in length are most convenient—one inch wide for fingers, two inches for feet, two and one-half to three inches for head and arms and four inches for legs. A good way of keeping them in condition for use is to seal the rolls in a perfectly clean glass fruit jar.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 28.—Sport writers who seek interviews with baseball leaders in these frivolous days should provide themselves with witnesses for such occasions, so they can have a "come back" when the leaders repudiate the interviews.

Ban Johnson started the repudiating fashion a month or two ago. At that time Ban was in Boston and a very reliable and very accurate sporting writer sought out Ban and asked Ban a few words on the baseball situation generally. Ban in one of his talkative moods talked—and talked at length.

The next day there appeared in the paper a mighty interesting interview credited to Ban Johnson which created something of a sensation because the quoted words of Ban made it look very much as if baseball peace was a certainty in the near future—which it is.

Some of the associates of Ban in the baseball business read the article and got pretty much wrought up over it. The interview seemed to show that Ban had spilled the beans—had tipped off the dear, old public to what was what before the date fixed by Ban's associates. Whether Ban's associates telegraphed him or got him on the long distance 'phone and "panned" him is not known. But the same afternoon Ban gathered the newspaper folks around him and said, in effect:

"Boys, lookit me; I'm a wronged man. Ain't it turrible? And the wrong that has been did me was did by one of your fellow sport writers. Yes sir-ee; one of your fellow laborers. He committed the heinous crime of misquoting me. He put words in my mouth that I never uttered. He put a false construction on the words I did utter He practically said in his article that I intimated that peace was not far distant Peace? How absurb—how totally, absolutely absurd! Boys, please deny in your organs that I gave out such an interview as that fellow printed."

The organs pealed forth the denial and the sport writer who got that first interview was "in Dutch," but he insists—and will take oath to that effect—that the interview that he printed was the interview that Ban gave him.

Just a few weeks ago Garry Herrmann, a Cincinnati personage, joined the "I repudiate that interview" club. Garry was quoted in a Cincinnati paper as saying that organized baseball was in financial difficulty and intimating that peace was the only way out. The interview created a robust sensation and Garry was verbally flayed by some of his associates, including Ban, the charter member of the Interview Repudiation Club.

And now Garry rushes into the open and repudiates that interview. Garry says he didn't say what the sport writer says he said. Garry, the dear, old fellow, denies that he said that organized baseball could not stand the financial strain much longer. But Garry admits that he told the sporting writer that he agreed with Charles W. Somers, owner of the Cleveland Indians, who said that the baseball salaries being paid now were of such a nature that some of the clubs in organized baseball could not stand the strain for any great length of time.

Ban Johnson was quoted some weeks ago as saying that if the United States went to war all the big league parks in organized baseball would close on August first. The story was quite generally printed and it caused quite a bit of comment. Some of the comment was by the magnates who didn't like the idea—and who said so.

Whereupon, Ban Johnson cinched his membership in the Interview Repudiation Club by gathering some of the newspaper boys around him and told them that he never said those there words—not him. Why, the very id-ee! Ball parks close August first! How absurd! Ball parks will remain open until the regular season closes, war or no war! And would the boys please deny for him that he gave out that interview?

Ardonia Mothers' Club Festival.

The Ardonia Mothers' Club will hold an entertainment and festival on the school grounds, the evening of July 3. A suitable program is being prepared and admission will be free. It is to be hoped that there will be a good attendance to encourage the mothers. They manifest a great interest in the welfare of the school.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. Charles Smith wishes to express her kind appreciation and thanks for the large turnout of members of Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, Junior Order United American Mechanics, at the funeral of their brother, and for the beautiful floral tributes. For these and the many other acts of kindness of sympathy in her bereavement in the death of her husband she will always hold them in kind remembrance, and also the relatives and friends for their numerous kindnesses.

In Recorder's Court.

The trial of Joseph Martini, the Broadway barber, arrested on the complaint of Mrs. Sam Amen, who said he had spit in her face and called her indecent names, was adjourned to Tuesday morning.

Three boys were arraigned before the recorder this morning for firing off fire crackers before the Fourth of July. They were warned that it was against the law and on their promise not to shoot off any more until the Fourth they were discharged.

Another family jar was brought to the attention of Recorder Lang this morning when a young woman appeared and asked for a warrant for the arrest of her husband who she said comes home drunk, knocks her around like a rag doll and swears at her. The husband will be notified to appear before the recorder on Tuesday to answer to the charge.

HUSTLERS DEFEAT RED MONOGRAMS

Wetmore's Poughkeepsie Hustlers repaid the Monograms at Athletic field Saturday for the severe drubbing the latter team administered to the Bridge City contingent a week ago Sunday at Poughkeepsie. Holden, who was on the firing line for the visitors, succeeded in puzzling the local players to such an extent that only five hits were made off his delivery. Duncan, who twirled for the Monograms, presented the Hustlers with nine good, clean hits. The Monograms seemed to have been demoralized, and the field work was at times loose. Conners and Rice did not play, and their absence was keenly felt, for both are excellent "stickers," and their usual timeliness in hitting might have considerably changed the result of the game, which was 10 to 0 in favor of the visitors.

Manager Brown, although somewhat disappointed over the unfavorable turn of events Saturday, is still hopeful of reaching the top rung of the team average ladder before the end of the sason. The loss of this particular game will not dampen the ardor of the Monograms' friends, but it goes to show that the best of teams will have an occasional "off" day. To this rule there is no exception.

The strengthening of the Monograms is a task Manager Brown has set for himself, and he is determined to have the best team in the Tri-county League, no matter what the cost. Among other famous players whom he will probably sign up in the near future is "Chuck" Freer, the crack hitter and second baseman of the Tivoli team.
